

Eliana Iliofotou

Research Associate

Eliana Iliofotou holds a BSC in Economics from Athens University of Economics and Business (2005), an MA in European Studies from Exeter University, UK (2007) and an MBA from Cyprus International Institute of Management – CIIM (2010).

She has been working as a project manager in an NGO for three years, responsible for the management of EU funded projects, fundraising and organization of conferences. Since 2013, she has worked at the Cyprus University of Technology (CUT) as the Manager of Europe Direct Limassol Information Center in the Research Department. She has also worked at the Promotion and Communication Department of the CUT as the Social Media and Digital Marketing Manager (2016-2018).

Since 2019, she joined the team of the Digital Heritage Lab as the Communication Manager and she is mainly responsible for the communication plan design and developing campaigns with the media, social media and she also serves as the website manager and the project manager of the EU-OBP project.